Addiction Services Council

Navigating the Path to Lifelong Recovery

The Addiction Services Council is proud to offer support to family members and loved ones of those struggling with substance use.

Using evidence-based practices, the family support group provides a personal setting to assist with education on substance abuse, questions and concerns related to your loved one's individual journey toward recovery, and ways to care for yourself while supporting them. Facilitated by a licensed chemical dependency counselor, the family support group offers a weekly platform to discuss struggles and successes, as well as gain tools to aid in forming a healthier relationship with your loved one.
